Subpart 3 (clauses 41 to 56) contains technical provisions to facilitate the vesting of the cultural redress properties and provisions relating to the reserve sites.

Subpart 4—Extraction of hāngi stones

Subpart 4 (clauses 57 to 60) contain provisions relating to the extraction of relevant hāngi stones.

Subpart 5—Redress relating to fisheries and resource management matters

Subpart 5 (clauses 61 to 64) provide for redress in relation to fisheries and resource management matters.

Clause 61 provides that if an application is made under section 201 of the Resource Management Act 1991 to amend, revoke, or replace the Water Conservation (Mohaka River) Order 2004 or to make any other water conservation order under section 214 of that Act in respect of the Mohaka River or its tributaries, the trustees of the Ngāti Pāhauwera Development Trust may nominate a specified number of persons as members of the special tribunal appointed by the Minister for the Environment under section 202 of that Act to hear and report on the application.

Clause 62 provides that the Minister of Fisheries must, on or before the settlement date appoint the trustees of the Ngāti Pāhauwera Development Trust as an advisory committee under section 21 of the Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries (Restructuring) Act 1995 for the purposes of advising the Minister on the changes to current prohibition on the commercial taking of aquatic life from Mohaka River and changes to finfish restrictions and prohibitions that may affect the area known as the Wairoa Hard.

Clause 63 amends Policy 52 of the Hawke's Bay Regional Resource Management Plan prepared by the Hawke's Bay Regional Council to omit certain words from the heading of the policy to remove uncertainty about its application.

Clause 64 provides that the Hawke's Bay Regional Council, the Wairoa District Council and the Hastings District Council must forward to the trustees of the Ngāti Pāhauwera Development Trust a copy of all applications for resource consents in respect of activities within the catchment of the Mohaka River, Waikari River, or Waihua River.

Subpart 6—Statutory acknowledgement

Subpart 7—The Crown not prevented from providing similar redress

Subpart 7 (clause 79) provides that the Crown's provision of the statutory acknowledgement under Subpart 6 does not prevent the Crown from doing anything that is consistent with that redress, including—

- providing, or agreeing to introduce legislation providing, the same or similar redress to a person other than Ngāti Pāhauwera or the trustees;
- disposing of land.

Part 3

Commercial redress

Part 3 (clauses 80 to 123) provides for commercial redress. It contains provisions relating to the transfer of the commercial redress properties and provides for, among other matters, the creation of a computer freehold register in relation to the properties, the right of access to protected sites on those properties, and for RFR redress.

Schedules

There are 4 schedules that—

- list the hapū of Ngāti Pāhauwera (Schedule 1);
 - describe the relevant parts of Te Heru o Tūreia (Schedule 2);
 - describe the other cultural redress properties that vest in the Ngāti Pāhauwera Tiaki Trust (Schedule 3);

Preamble

Background

- (1) The Treaty of Waitangi (Te Tiriti o Waitangi) was signed in 1840. The terms of the Treaty of Waitangi (Te Tiriti o Waitangi) in English and Māori are set out in Schedule 1 of the Treaty of Waitangi Act 1975:
- (2) Recitals (3) to (22) of this Preamble present, in summary form, the historical account set out in the deed of settlement entered into by Ngāti Pāhauwera and the Crown:

Background

- (3) The Ngāti Pāhauwera confederation of hapū descend from ancestors who maintained long occupation (noho tūturu/ahi-kā-roa) and established the take whenua (rights to the land) and exclusive and other customary rights, that have formed the basis of the Iwi tino rangatiratanga over the lands. Collectively Ngāti Pāhauwera exercised customary interests in northern Hawke's Bay. Their traditional boundary extended inland from the coast north of the Waihua River across to the Waiau River and followed its course to the headwaters in the Huiarau Ranges. From there the boundary extended across to Tātarakina (Te Haroto) and on to Puketītiri and from there across to Te Wai o Hinganga (Esk River) and followed its course to the sea.

Pre 1865 transactions

- (4) In 1851, the Crown sought to purchase land in the Hawke's Bay in response to growing settler interest. A Ngāti Pāhauwera chief, Paora Rerepu, heard Crown assurances about material benefits of land transactions and expressed a willingness to enter negotiations with the Crown.
- (5) The Crown acquired a large block of land between the Mohaka and Waikari rivers from Ngāti Pāhauwera in 1851. The Mohaka block included some of the more productive lands in the Ngāti Pāhauwera rohe. The price paid for the block reflected Crown policy to pay low prices for Māori land as a contribution towards the cost of developing the new colony. It also reflected an anticipation that economic opportunities for Māori would soon flow from proximity to European settlement. However, these benefits did not materialise.

- (6) Despite the 87 500 acre Mohaka block including pā, kāinga, cultivation sites and important food gathering areas the Crown reserved only 100 acres at Te Heru o Tūreia for the future use of Ngāti Pāhauwera. Te Heru o Tūreia was of paramount importance as a kāinga, mahinga kai and the burial place of high-ranking Ngāti Pāhauwera ancestors, including Te Kahu o Te Rangi. The Crown nonetheless proceeded to acquire the reserve in 1859 from only a few of those involved in the original transaction.
- (7) The Mohaka transaction drew numerous petitions and other correspondence from Ngāti Pāhauwera in the late 19th and over the 20th century in relation to the purchase price, the sale of the reserve and boundary issues.
- (8) In 1864, the Crown purchased the 21 000 acre Waihua block in the northern part of the Ngāti Pāhauwera rohe. This transaction confirmed an alliance between the Crown and Ngāti Pāhauwera in the lead up to the outbreak of war. No reserves were made for Ngāti Pāhauwera as a group. The surveyed boundary of the Waihua block was not the same as the boundary agreed in the purchase deed. As a result an additional 1 152 acres was incorrectly included in the Waihua block. Although Ngāti Pāhauwera complained about this the Crown did not return the 1 152 acres or purchase the additional land from Ngāti Pāhauwera. Instead, the land was sold into private ownership.

War

- (9) Ngāti Pāhauwera gave political support and substantial military assistance to the Crown after war broke out on the East Coast in 1865. Following a limited military conflict between Crown forces and Pai Mārire in the Napier area in 1866, the Crown confiscated all Māori land between the Waikari and Esk rivers. This included lands in which Ngāti Pāhauwera held interests, even though they were not considered by the Crown to have been ‘rebels’.

- (10) Ngāti Pāhauwera were amongst those who took up arms alongside the Crown to pursue Te Kooti and his forces after they escaped from the Chatham Islands in 1868. At that time, the Crown maintained ammunition reserves at Mohaka. The Crown ignored warnings of a possible attack on communities at Mohaka. In April 1869, Ngāti Pāhauwera pā and kāinga were attacked by Te Kooti's forces resulting in the killing of 56 Ngāti Pāhauwera a men, women, and children, the wounding and taking of others as prisoners, and the destruction and looting of crops, property and supplies. The survivors received little assistance from the Crown to aid their recovery and like other civilians received no compensation for their losses. The loss of their men, women, and children has been felt for generations by Ngāti Pāhauwera.

Native Land Court

- (11) The Native Land Court was established principally to speed up the alienation of Māori land to open up lands for settlement. The Court was to determine the owners of Māori land “according to native custom” and convert customary title into title derived from the Crown. In 1868, Ngāti Pāhauwera sought to secure title to much of their land to the north of the confiscation area. At this time around 120 000 acres between the valleys of the Mohaka and Waiau Rivers remained in Ngāti Pāhauwera possession.
- (12) Land rights under customary tenure were generally communal but the new land laws gave rights to individuals with no provision for title to be held by the tribe as a whole. The Court awarded the blocks to 10 owners each and registered others with interests on the title. For three of these blocks the names of hapū rather than individuals were registered. This did not fully comply with the Native Lands Act 1867. This legal irregularity meant those lands could not be sold immediately, but caused significant problems for Ngāti Pāhauwera. Title for these blocks was litigated throughout the 19th century and resolved only by the early 20th century.

Alienation

- (13) During the 1870s, Ngāti Pāhauwera suffered further land loss. By 1883, approximately half the land Ngāti Pāhauwera held at 1868 had been sold to private parties and the Crown. The prices paid were low (between one and two shillings per acre) as the lands had limited value for agricultural or cultivation purposes. Pre-existing debts and charges for the survey of the blocks (which were necessary to acquire title) were deducted from the amount received by the vendors.

Landlessness

- (14) In 1907, the Royal Commission on Native Lands and Native-Land Tenure (the Stout-Ngata Commission) concluded that Ngāti Pāhauwera needed all their remaining land for their occupation and support. However, there was no legal barrier to prevent the Crown from continuing to purchase land. The Native Lands Act 1909 made private purchasing of Māori lands easier by providing a streamlined standard sale mechanism managed by Māori Land Boards. Despite the clear warning from the Stout-Ngata Commission, the Crown resumed purchasing land from Ngāti Pāhauwera in 1914 acquiring 18 631 acres by 1920 and another 5 381 acres over the following decade. Between 1911 and 1930, 7 507 acres of Ngāti Pāhauwera land was alienated to private purchasers with the consent of the Tairāwhiti Māori Land Board.
- (15) A consolidation scheme was introduced for the Mohaka, Waipapa, Waihua and Putere blocks in the late 1920s. Crown and individual interests in the blocks were converted into nominal cash values, and then into new subdivisions separating out Crown and Māori lands. The consolidation scheme was meant to increase the economic viability of remaining Māori landholdings, but was limited in its effectiveness. The Crown continued to acquire land while the consolidation scheme was underway. A number of Ngāti Pāhauwera owners were burdened with debts of more than £2,000, to pay for Crown interests incorporated into their new land blocks.
- (16) By 1930, approximately 25 000 acres remained in Ngāti Pāhauwera ownership. The Crown promoted a land development scheme on the Mohaka and Waipapa land blocks in 1930, with the aim of providing Ngāti Pāhauwera with the capital and agricultural training required to develop and operate dairy units on their remaining land. The Crown provided substantial loans for land development along with supervision by the Native Department. In return, the land owners were required to surrender the right to exercise any rights of ownership.

- (17) The amount of land in Ngāti Pāhauwera ownership was insufficient to accommodate all those who wished to participate in the development scheme and only selected individuals were able to access any benefit. The success of the scheme was also hampered by the lack of suitable land for dairying. The early focus on the creation of subsistence level family based dairy farms did not allow for the exploration of other, possibly more appropriate, forms of land use. This was exacerbated by the sharp decline in dairy farming profits during the depression, and the reduction in the amounts of capital made available by the Crown in the 1940s. By 1950, only 30 dairy units remained in operation, with a few others converting to sheep.

Post-War Alienations

- (18) The post-war period saw further sales of land and by the end of the 20th century Māori retained approximately 13 400 acres or less within the Ngāti Pāhauwera blocks. Most of those lands were scattered parcels in multiple ownership, with large numbers of people holding small ownership interests. Fractionated ownership, disputes over titles, lack of access to land locked sections and rising rates greatly restricted the ability of landowners to derive full benefit from their holdings.
- (19) During the 20th century many people left the Mohaka district due to the lack of economic opportunities, the failure of many farms and the difficulty of fully utilising the lands remaining. The dispersal of people limited the opportunities for Ngāti Pāhauwera to transfer cultural knowledge from one generation to another through pakiwaitara and pūrākau, mahinga kai activity, whare wānanga, and social occasions.

Environment

- (20) The Crown has through legislation assumed regulatory control over resources and the environment. This limited opportunities for Ngāti Pāhauwera to develop and use those resources themselves. Over time the environment suffered from some degree of degradation and there has been a decline in species of importance to Ngāti Pāhauwera. Mahinga kai and rongoa gathering places of Ngāti Pāhauwera have been polluted or lost. The loss of these resources also led to the loss of knowledge and ritual associated with them, including rongoa and crafts.

Socio-economic consequences

- (21) The lack of land and resources and the ensuing lack of an economic base have significantly contributed to the impoverishment of Ngāti Pāhauwera. As a group, Ngāti Pāhauwera who stayed in the rohe have had very limited employment opportunities, lower than average housing stock, educational outcomes and incomes, a reliance on income support, and high rates of unemployment. As compared to the national average fewer Ngāti Pāhauwera children have gained a high school qualification. Ngāti Pāhauwera suffered severely from newly-introduced European diseases and epidemics. The health of the resident population of Ngāti Pāhauwera remained very poor in contrast to national levels in the 20th century. In 2001, Māori living in the Mohaka/Raupunga area were assessed to be at the most deprived level on the New Zealand Deprivation Index.
- (22) The years of petitions and litigation about Crown actions and the inadequacies of the Crown's response have also taken a toll on Ngāti Pāhauwera, requiring time and resources which could have been directed towards developing Ngāti Pāhauwera. Ngāti Pāhauwera characterise their socio-economic experience as one of bleakness but assert the need for a fresh relationship with the Crown and hope for their future development.

The Parliament of New Zealand therefore enacts as follows:

Acknowledgements and apology

6 Acknowledgements and apology

Sections 7 to 9 record the acknowledgements and the apology offered by the Crown to Ngāti Pāhauwera, and the acceptance of the apology, as set out in the deed of settlement.

7 Acknowledgements by the Crown

The text of the acknowledgements made by the Crown, as set out in the deed of settlement, is as follows:

- (1) The Crown acknowledges its failure to deal in an appropriate way with grievances raised by successive generations of Ngāti Pāhauwera since 1851 and that recognition of these grievances is long overdue. The Crown also acknowledges the long tradition of Ngāti Pāhauwera loyalty to the Crown.
- (2) The Crown acknowledges that in acquiring the Mohaka and Waihua blocks in 1851 and 1864 it breached the Treaty of Waitangi (Te Tiriti o Waitangi) and its principles by—
 - (a) failing to ensure Ngāti Pāhauwera were able to reserve sites of particular significance and places of residence within the Crown purchase blocks; and
 - (b) acquiring Te Heru o Tūreia in 1859, the single 100-acre reserve set aside from the Mohaka transaction, despite it being an important wahi tapu and site of paramount significance and the only land remaining to Ngāti Pāhauwera in the Mohaka block.

- (3) The Crown further acknowledges that—
 - (a) it did not provide leasing as an alternative to purchase when it acquired the Mohaka block:
 - (b) there was ambiguity in the 1851 deed about the precise boundaries of the Mohaka transaction:
 - (c) the boundaries of Te Heru o Tūreia were never surveyed before the Crown purchased it, and the transfer of the title was made by only 11 of the 297 signatories to the Mohaka transaction:
 - (d) the Crown paid a low price for the Mohaka block and Ngāti Pāhauwera did not receive the full, ongoing benefits from European settlement they were led to expect in accepting a low price.
- (4) The Crown acknowledges that its failure to fully investigate and rectify the wrongful inclusion of 1 152 acres of adjacent Ngāti Pāhauwera land in the Waihua block deprived Ngāti Pāhauwera of its valuable land and resources, and breached the Treaty of Waitangi (Te Tiriti o Waitangi) and its principles.
- (5) The Crown acknowledges that it failed to provide Ngāti Pāhauwera with protection against the known risk of attack in 1869 and provided only minimal assistance to help Ngāti Pāhauwera recover after the attack on their pā and kainga in the Mohaka Valley. The Crown acknowledges that the combined effect of these failures amounted to a breach of the Treaty of Waitangi (Te Tiriti o Waitangi) and its principles.
- (6) The Crown acknowledges that its confiscation of land in the Mohaka-Waikare confiscation district compulsorily extinguished any customary interests including those of Ngāti Pāhauwera in that district in breach of the Treaty of Waitangi (Te Tiriti o Waitangi) and its principles.
- (7) The Crown acknowledges that—
 - (a) the Crown breached the Treaty of Waitangi (Te Tiriti o Waitangi) and its principles by not providing until 1894 any means in the native land legislation for a form of collective title enabling Ngāti Pāhauwera to administer and utilise their lands:

- (b) Ngāti Pāhauwera were unable to effectively utilise the Waipapa, Waihua 1 and 2 and Whareraurakau blocks, awarded in the name of hapū in 1868, until the legal issues arising from the use of hapū rather than individual names in the titles were resolved in the late 19th century.
- (8) The Crown acknowledges that—
- (a) by the time a corporate title option had become available, title to all Ngāti Pāhauwera lands, except three blocks, had been awarded to individual Ngāti Pāhauwera:
 - (b) the operation and impact of the native land laws, in particular the awarding of land to individual Ngāti Pāhauwera rather than to iwi or hapū, made those lands more susceptible to partition, fragmentation, and alienation. This contributed to the further erosion of the traditional tribal structures of Ngāti Pāhauwera which were based on collective tribal and hapū custodianship of land. The Crown failed to take steps to adequately protect those structures. This had a prejudicial effect on Ngāti Pāhauwera and was a breach of the Treaty of Waitangi (Te Tiriti o Waitangi) and its principles:
 - (c) these processes disturbed Ngāti Pāhauwera settlement patterns and contributed to the displacement of their people by the end of the 19th century.
- (9) The Crown acknowledges that—
- (a) the Crown’s ongoing programme of land purchasing in the 19th and early 20th centuries and private purchasing has left Ngāti Pāhauwera virtually landless:
 - (b) it failed to monitor the impact of land purchases on Ngāti Pāhauwera and, despite the clear implications of the Stout-Ngata Royal Commission’s findings in 1907, proceeded to acquire large quantities of Ngāti Pāhauwera lands over the next two decades:
 - (c) its failure to ensure Ngāti Pāhauwera retained sufficient land for their present and future needs was a breach of the Treaty of Waitangi (Te Tiriti o Waitangi) and its principles.

- (10) The Crown acknowledges that over time its actions and omissions have seriously impaired the ability of Ngāti Pāhauwera to make appropriate use of their remaining lands and to fully participate in the economic development of the country.
- (11) The Crown acknowledges that it used the consolidation scheme to convert its own fragmented purchases of Ngāti Pāhauwera land interests into usable land blocks, and to obtain additional land for survey costs. The Crown further acknowledges that Ngāti Pāhauwera did not receive all the benefits they were led to expect from consolidation and the subsequent development schemes, and many owners effectively lost the opportunity to live on and use their land under the development schemes.
- (12) The Crown acknowledges—
- (a) the significance of the Mohaka, Waikari, and Waihua Rivers to Ngāti Pāhauwera as taonga and the mauri of their spiritual and material well-being:
 - (b) the importance to Ngāti Pāhauwera of these rivers as highways, and providers of mahinga kai and other resources important to Ngāti Pāhauwera for cultural and commercial reasons:
 - (c) that the environmental degradation of these rivers and the decline in species of importance to Ngāti Pāhauwera has been a source of distress to Ngāti Pāhauwera as is the detrimental impact of gravel extraction activities and access to hāngi stones.
- (13) The Crown acknowledges that it has failed to respect, provide for, and protect the special relationship of Ngāti Pāhauwera with their rivers.
- (14) The Crown acknowledges that Ngāti Pāhauwera have demonstrated their loyalty to the Crown over the generations and helped to meet the nation's defence obligations including service in two world wars. The Crown acknowledges the loss to Ngāti Pāhauwera of those who died in the service of their country in New Zealand and overseas.
- (15) The Crown acknowledges that—
- (a) Ngāti Pāhauwera expectations of an ongoing and mutually beneficial relationship with the Crown were not always realised:

- (b) the socio-economic impacts of settlement on Ngāti Pāhauwera continue to be felt:
- (c) in part as a result of Crown actions or omissions, Ngāti Pāhauwera have been deprived of opportunities for economic, social, and cultural development for too long and to the detriment of their material, cultural and spiritual well-being.

8 Apology

The text of the apology offered by the Crown, as set out in the deed of settlement, is as follows:

- (1) Ngāti Pāhauwera has a long tradition of providing support to, and seeking a positive relationship with, the Crown. The Crown profoundly regrets that it failed to provide adequate support to Ngāti Pāhauwera including before and after the attack at Mohaka in 1869.
- (2) The Crown is deeply sorry for its breaches of the Treaty of Waitangi (Te Tiriti o Waitangi) and its principles which left Ngāti Pāhauwera with insufficient land-holdings by 1883. The Crown profoundly regrets its ongoing failure to protect the remaining land-holdings of Ngāti Pāhauwera which has had devastating consequences for them—socially, economically, physically, culturally and spiritually—that continue to be felt today.
- (3) The Crown unreservedly apologises for not having honoured its obligations to Ngāti Pāhauwera under the Treaty of Waitangi (Te Tiriti o Waitangi) and through this settlement the Crown seeks to atone for its wrongs and to begin the process of healing. The Crown looks forward to building a relationship with Ngāti Pāhauwera, based on mutual trust and co-operation, founded on the Treaty of Waitangi (Te Tiriti o Waitangi) and its principles.

9 Acceptance of apology

The text of the acceptance of the apology, as set out in the deed of settlement, is as follows:

- (1) Ngāti Pāhauwera acknowledges that the Crown's apology represents its commitment to build a positive relationship with Ngāti Pāhauwera and to honour its obligations under the Treaty of Waitangi (Te Tiriti o Waitangi), for the good of this and future generations. Accordingly, Ngāti Pāhauwera accept the apology offered by the Crown and also look forward to building a positive relationship with the Crown.

93 Registrar-General must note right of access

- (1) This section applies to licensed land on which a protected site is situated.
